

Rezső SCHMIDT

(Hungary)

E-mail: schmidt.rezso@gmail.com

Rezső SCHMIDT, Professor of soil management at the Faculty of Agricultural and Food Sciences of West Hungarian University in Mosonmagyaróvár, Hungary. He graduated as an agronomist at the Faculty of Agriculture in Mosonmagyaróvár. He specialized in soils and plant nutrition at Keszthely University. He has a PhD in plant nutrition. He has been studying the effect of plant nutrition on the chemical composition of plants and on produce quality with special regards to trace elements. His field also includes studying of different aspects of soil fertility, tillage aspects of fertility and crop production and the utilization possibilities of secondary raw material plant nutrients. He is the head of the Institute of Crop Production at the Mosonmagyaróvár Agricultural Faculty and presently is the dean of the Faculty.